

THE BARRE DAILY TIMES

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 3, 1912.

Published every week-day afternoon.
 Subscriptions: One year, $3.00; one month, 25 cents; single copy, 1 cent.

Entered at the post office at Barre as second-class matter.

Frank E. Langley, Publisher.

Those spring poems are again laid away.

Taft didn't have any more chance in Wisconsin than an angel in the lower region; but Bob La Follette was right at home there.

We notice that at least three Vermont corporations formed to do granite business have forfeited their charter rights by failure to file returns and pay their annual license. Thus are some of the "good-as-Barre" granites exploited like a balloon which becomes punctured.

The announcement that another big dam will be thrown across the Winooski river near Essex Junction for the purpose of developing electric power reminds that the old Winooski is carrying quite a load for us already; but that does not prevent it from being all the more serviceable. And it remains for the state only to keep the harnessing power from being monopolized.

Barre should be interested in the statement that Rutland expects to buy an automobile fire truck for less than $5,000. Mayor Clement in an official report says: "The sum of $5,000 estimated cost for an automobile truck is an outside figure. I should expect to purchase one for something less than this, although I understand that $5,000 is the list price of such machines." If that is the case in Rutland, it ought to be so in Barre. It is worth looking into, city council, before the city of Barre is asked to pay the $5,500 which has been appropriated for the purchase. Barre can get a machine as cheaply as Rutland, and we should inquire how Rutland proposes to buy the machine.

One of the duties of the governor of Vermont is to represent the state on special occasions in other states; and in electing a governor Vermonters should have in mind that qualification which enables a man to represent the state well. In connection with this, one is struck by the following paragraph from the Springfield, Mass., Republican, relating to the visit of Joseph A. DeBoer of Montpelier to the annual sugarfest of the Vermont association in Springfield:

"Mr. DeBoer was thoroughly in his element, and in an eloquent and convincing way traversed the present conditions in Vermont. He gave some striking illustrations of what Vermont has done and is doing. He showed how the state is building up a unique fund for the advancing of education and is expending enormous sums of money in improving the roads. It was just what the people wanted to hear. He showed that he had a splendid grasp of the situation and that he is a fearless critic and a sane reformer. His policies are distinctively constructive and he evidently believes that the evils which lurk in the body politic can be eliminated by crowding them out with better things. He was listened to with the keenest interest and won repeated applause."

Coming from an unprejudiced source, such a word picture of one of Vermont's candidates for governor carries its own significance. In selecting Mr. DeBoer as their governor, Vermonters would be assured that they would be splendidly represented by an executive who is thoroughly conversant with Vermont conditions and Vermont needs. It is a qualification which commends Mr. DeBoer to Vermont people.

"STOP THEFT" POLITICS.

The entry of Manager Dixon of the Roosevelt campaign into Vermont, crying, "Stop, thief," at every breath is likely to cause a commotion of a different sort than Mr. Dixon intends, for he brings a kind of politics which is entirely different than Vermonters are accustomed to deal with. The claim that Roosevelt was "robbed" of votes in New York county by the poor manipulation of the primary system carried some weight there, because it was known that the primary worked poorly and that many voters failed to get their votes counted, albeit the inference is fair that as many Taft men as Roosevelt men were thus deprived of the right.

But here in Vermont there is not the slightest intimation that Taft managers "robbed" Roosevelt, nor that any slick politics prevented a full and free expression of Roosevelt sentiment; indeed, if the truth were known, it would probably turn out that the Roosevelt support was more closely gathered to the caucuses than was the Taft strength. In consequence, every Roosevelt delegate is tagged with a Roosevelt tag as securely as an expression of sentiment by the voters in the individual caucuses was able to do the job; and they will be men of unusual hardihood who attempt to go back on those instructions.

Therefore, for Manager Dixon to hasten to Vermont with an expressed purpose to prevent any further "political robbery" by Taft supporters is absurd. All he can do is to snap up some of the stray votes which were not instructed by the caucuses; and in that the Roosevelt managers have as fair a field of operation as the Taft managers. But there will be no "robbery" on either side, Mr. Dixon, if Vermonters are allowed to carry on the campaign. Of that you and Col. Roosevelt may rest assured. Vermont has no desire to have New York or Indiana methods introduced, no matter by whom introduced.

Two artists of note, whose work is appearing regularly in the leading magazines of the country, have combined their forces with the single purpose of teaching young men and women the shortest and best method, consistent with hard, serious work, of making a living in the commercial and magazine fields.

The practical experience of these successful men will be invaluable to the student who finds it impossible to spend time and money in the long, tedious courses of the average art school. A market will be furnished for the work of graduates of this school.
